BF Development Corporation Outlines Goals for 2020

Belle Fourche Beacon - The Belle Fourche Development Corporation (BFDC) hosted its annual planning retreat on Tuesday, October 29th and outlined six key areas it plans to focus on in the coming years and beyond.

The goals were presented to a consortium of community leaders during a noon luncheon. Among those present were representatives from the school district, city administration, city council, county commissioners and the BFDC board of directors.

Among the facilitators during the morning work sessions were Mutch Usera from Black Hills Energy and Pat Kurtenbach, formerly of the Sturgis Economic Development Corporation, now with the West River Business Services Center in Rapid City.

The six areas of emphasis included housing, business attraction, financial stability, the industrial/ rail park, technical institute partnership with the public schools and community engagement.

During the morning session Usera provided a brief history of progress that the BFDC has made since its inception in 2012. "I think you have to do that," he said. "It's so amazing when you look back and see where you've set goals, worked on projects and seen them come to life."
